All he had to do was go onto the internet to get a picture of your house.

At a glance, he can tell you live in a nice house that probably contains something worth stealing. He can see whether you sometimes leave windows open. He'll look at whether you have a conveniently concealed side entrance or other blind spots. And he'll be delighted if you don't appear to have any sort of alarm system.

The Police Federation says it expects there to be at least a 25% rise in crimes against property in the immediate future. So, now's the time to act. A wireless monitored system from MR Fire & Security Group provides a totally new level of performance in home security. Our impressive PowerMax Pro all-in-one security solution is exceptionally reliable, great value and simple to use. Our discreet 'wire free' systems are expertly installed with minimum disruption and tailored to suit your environment. Once activated, your home will be watched over 24/7 by our secure monitoring station, and can qualify for emergency police response if required. Oh, and one other thing.

We'll organise for your home to be removed from any internet street view sites if you would like us too.

Is your bell box telling burglars your alarm system is obsolete

We recommend that any alarm system which has not been regularly serviced should be checked.

A glance, up at your antiquated bell box will tell a burglar your alarm system is outdated or obsolete. The Police Federation says it expects there to be at least a 25% rise in crimes against property in the immediate future. So, if you don't feel adequately protected, now's the time to act.

If you are an existing MR Fire & Security customer we can give your alarm an up to date look by installing one of our new bell boxes. If you're not, one of our engineers will come and check your system from top to bottom and make sure it's up to the job. If it's not, we can recommend an update, or offer you a wireless monitored system. Our impressive PowerMax Pro all-in-one security solution is exceptionally reliable, great value and simple to use. Our discreet 'wire free' systems are expertly installed with minimum disruption and tailored to suit your environment. Once activated, your home will be watched over 24/7 by our secure monitoring station, and can qualify for emergency police response if required. Call us now for more information.
